Mission Statement

The mission of the Georgia Department of Corrections is to protect the public, victims of crime, and agency staff by holding offenders accountable by providing safe and secure facilities, effective community supervision, and effective methods of self-improvement for offenders, thereby reducing crimes.

From the Commissioner

Please allow me to welcome you to the Georgia Department of Corrections Annual Report for Fiscal Year 2000.

At Corrections, we have the massive responsibility of incarcerating almost 44,000 inmates and supervising more than 132,000 probationers. It's definitely not an easy job, but we do it well because the 14,000 employees of this Department are out there every day putting their hearts and souls into jobs to help ensure the safety and security of all Georgians. I am very grateful to the men and women of this Department who enable our state to operate one of the most secure and dependable correctional systems in the country.

In order to continue our success, we must maintain a vision for the future that ensures a smart, balanced approach to Georgia corrections. After all, correctional policies and correctional spending have huge implications on state and local governments and the citizens whom we serve. In Georgia, our vision first includes sufficient numbers of hard prison beds for the hard criminals who prey on society. Our vision also includes the expansion of a correctional infrastructure that echoes calls from throughout the criminal justice community for a wider array of sentencing options that match the offender and the crime.

Our goal at Corrections is a diverse system of retribution, restitution, and reparation. To that end, Fiscal Year 2000 marked the start of an ambitious plan to not only add prison beds, but also enhance sentencing options like diversion centers, detention centers, transitional centers and probation resources. We are very grateful to Governor Barnes, the members of the General Assembly, and the taxpayers of this state who have all supported our efforts to bring a more balanced approach and a greater level of effectiveness to Georgia's system of crime and punishment.

As you read through this report, you'll learn more about the current operations of this Department as well as the plans for the future of Georgia Corrections. Please read on.

Sincerely,

Jim Wetherington
Commissioner

Executive Office

The Commissioner is responsible for the overall supervision of the agency.

The Assistant Commissioner, the Division Directors, Executive Assistant, Board Liaison, Legislative Services, Planning, Victim Services, Public Affairs, Legal Office, Information Technology, Correctional Industries, and Engineering & Inmate Construction report to the Commissioner's Office. The Assistant Commissioner oversees the daily operation of the agency.

The Office of Professional Standards oversees Internal Affairs, Special Investigations, Inmate Affairs & Appeals, Fire Services, and the Communications Center.

Facilities Division

The Facilities Division is responsible for Georgia's inmate population. This division manages the operation of all correctional facilities and is responsible for the care and custody of all state prison inmates, those state offenders who are incarcerated in county camps and private prisons, and offenders housed in probation facilities.

Probation Division

The Probation Division provides community supervision and services to over 140,000 probationers sentenced by the courts of Georgia's 48 judicial circuits.

Human Resources Division

The Human Resources Division is responsible for the issues and systems which impact the personnel and health resources component of the agency.

Administration Division

The Administration Division provides business and technical support to the other divisions within the agency.

Georgia Correctional Industries

GCI is a self-sustained operation supported by money generated from the manufacture and sale of its products and services. Over 1,800 inmates work each day in its prison plants, which include optics, carpentry, and chemicals.

Corrections in 2000

The agency's strategic direction for the new century is to efficiently improve the operation of our facilities, effectively supervise those offenders on probation, and collaborate with the courts, other criminal justice agencies, and the public to keep all Georgians safe.

A Balance of "Hard" and Alternative Beds

Hard prisons for predators and repeat criminals, and alternative punishments for others, means a balanced approach to criminal justice in Georgia.

In FY00, Corrections embarked on a massive program to add almost 3,600 alternative beds while adding 3,800 new hard beds for hard criminals.

Our challenge for the new century is to strike a balance between "hard beds" for prisoners who warrant high security supervision and alternative beds for those offenders who could better benefit from a short-term center.

Community corrections is critical to the safety of Georgia's public and the management of 134,000 probationers. In FY00, Corrections sought to renew probation through funding for new centers, new personnel and additional resources, including construction of Georgia's first in-patient probation drug treatment facility.

Technology

Georgia Governor Roy Barnes has mandated that all state agencies work to better inform the public, especially through electronic technology like the Internet.

This year, the Department launched a new and versatile web site. Now, criminal justice agencies and the public can access Corrections' database of photos and criminal backgrounds of current inmates as well as inmates released in recent years. Visitors can also view a virtual tour of a prison cellblock and request information about Corrections online. More, crime victims can register for notification if their attacker is ever released, and the public can download job announcements and state applications. Legislators, students, the media and other interested parties are now able to quickly access important Correctional statistics, studies, and research reports.

Budget

With needs to house and care for more inmates and supervise more probationers, Corrections' budget in FY00 was $887 million. Not only is the offender population growing in number, it's also aging and in poor health. In FY00, the medical portion of the budget exceeded $100 million.

Legislation

The 2000 legislative session passed bills designed to enhance the Georgia Department of Corrections' mission of safety and security for all Georgians.

SB318

Provisions After Conviction of Certain Sex Offenses

All felons entering or leaving the prison system are now required to provide a DNA sample that will be maintained on file by the Georgia Bureau of Investigation for future criminal investigations.

SB474

Probated, Suspended Misdemeanor Case

All misdemeanor offenders sentenced after January 1, 2001 will no longer be supervised by state probation officers.

All misdemeanants will now be supervised by private probation companies or through other arrangements made by the local courts.

HB1284

Death Penalty

For those sentenced to death for crimes committed after May 1, 2000, lethal injection is now the state's method of execution. For those inmates sentenced to death prior to this date, the law mandates lethal injection should the courts reject electrocution as a Constitutional means of execution.

HB1412

Inmate Release Notification

This law requires the Georgia Department of Corrections to now notify the sentencing judge as well as the victim of an inmate's projected release date either electronically or by mail.

The victim is notified only if it was a crime against the person, i.e., the victim was physically attacked or injured.

The Corrections Continuum

Regular Probation Supervision

Probationers must report to a probation officer, maintain employment, submit to drug and alcohol screens, and comply with all court-ordered requirements.

Intensive Probation Supervision

When more structure is needed than other supervision levels provide, a judge can order intensive probation supervision where the probationer is closely monitored by a team of officers.

Specialized Probation Supervision

Offenders who have committed sexual crimes, crimes against children or crimes of family violence may be subject to specialized, highly-monitored probation supervision.

Community Service

As a condition of a sentence, a probationer may be required to provide unpaid service to their community in lieu of fines and fees.

Diversion Center

A judge may order a probationer to stay at a diversion center where he works a paying job in the community and receives treatment options. The center deducts room, board, family support, restitution and fees from his paycheck.

Detention Center

A probation detention center is a minimum security facility for confining offenders. The inmates perform unpaid community work, receive treatment, and are eventually released to probation supervision.

Boot Camp

Boot camps combine discipline, hard work, and drug-education programs for non-violent offenders.

State Prison

State prisons house violent or repeat criminals, or nonviolent inmates who have exhausted all other forms of punishment.

County Prison

Some low-security, long-term state prisoners are incarcerated at county work camps. They provide unpaid yet highly-skilled work to the counties in which they are housed.

Private Prison

Georgia has contracts for three 1,500-bed private prisons to house medium-security state inmates.

Transitional Center

After a long term in prison, selected inmates are slowly reintegrated back into society with a job and enhanced prospects for stability. Center residents work jobs in the private sector while residing in the transitional facility.

Inmate Population

The number of Georgia inmates almost doubled over the past decade. Tough laws and policies are keeping inmates behind bars for most, if not all of their sentences. Georgia has the nation's 8th-largest prison population.

Of the 43,000 inmates in prison at the end of FY00, 43 percent were convicted of a violent crime. In addition, 12 percent were convicted of a sex crime.

Half of Georgia's inmates have a 10th grade or lower education, were raised with no father at home, have a high incidence of alcohol and drug abuse, and were previously incarcerated.

Sentencing Laws

With more offenders being sentenced to longer prison terms, the number of inmates in Georgia prisons is increasing. This is a result of tougher laws such as "Two Strikes" that mandates 100 percent of sentence for persons convicted of the seven most violent crimes including murder, armed robbery and aggravated sexual crimes, and the Parole Board's requirement that persons convicted of any one of 20 other violent crimes serve at least 90 percent of their sentence.

There are 4,206 inmates serving for a "first strike" and 77 "two strikers" serving life without parole. Also, since 1995, 63 juveniles, age 13-17, have been sentenced as adults.

Active Inmates by Most Serious Crime Type

Active Inmates' Prison Sentence

Security

Almost half of the cost per offender in a state facility is allocated for security, which includes the costs for correctional officers, their equipment, and their training.

Georgia inmates are assigned to a security level after a review of such factors as the inmate's sentence, nature of the crime, criminal history, and history of violence.

Maximum Security

Dangerous inmates who pose a high escape risk, or have other serious problems are assigned to this category and are housed in prisons with high levels of security.

Close Security

These inmates are escape risks, have assaultive histories, and may have detainers for other serious crimes on file. These inmates never leave the prison and require supervision at all times by a correctional officer.

Medium Security

Medium-security inmates have no major adjustment problems and most may work outside the prison fence, but must be under constant supervision.

Minimum Security

These inmates tend to abide by prison regulations, present a minimal risk of escape, and have been judged to be a minimal threat to the community.

Trusty Security

An inmate assigned to this level has proven to be trustworthy, is cooperative, and has no current alcohol/drug problems.

Program Services

When the inmate is not working at a job, his daily schedule includes educational, vocational, and substance abuse programs, and group and individual counseling.

Over 7,600 inmates were enrolled in academic education in FY00, including literacy/remedial reading, GED, and special education. This year, 2,283 inmates achieved GED certificates. Prisons also offer vocational programming.

Inmates have access to the prison libraries and legal materials, religious programming, substance abuse programs, counseling, and sex offender treatment.

All inmates receive a federally-mandated one hour of recreation per day.

Health Services

The annual cost per inmate for physical, mental, and dental health care rose 8 percent between FY99 and FY00 due to continued increases in pharmaceutical costs, an aging prison population and increased numbers of mentally ill inmates.

Basic health care for all inmates is a Constitutionally-required mandate. In FY00, health care costs alone exceeded $100 million. To help offset those increasing costs, the Department is expanding its telemedicine program and is continuing its interagency relationship with the Medical College of Georgia.

Pharmaceutical Cost Comparison of Top 10 Medications (1996, 2000)

	Cost/Pkg. 1996	Cost/Pkg 2000	% Change
Retrovir	$ 130	$ 148	13.8
Zoloft	168	193	14.9
Haldol Decanoate	193	263	36.3
Diflucan	168	179	6.5
Risperdal	159	211	32.7
Paxil	165	203	23.0
Dilantin	18	24	33.3
HIVID	197	208	5.6
Fluphenazine Dec	46	8	-82.6
Neupogen	1,198	1,414	18.0

Putting Inmates to Work

All able-bodied inmates in Georgia must work. To help repay their debt to society, inmates work up to eight hours per day in the prisons, on community details, on prison farms and in on-the-job training. Here are a few examples.

Food and Farm

The Food and Farm Operation trains inmates in food production and processing. Three thousand inmates work in prison kitchens, processing plants and on the prison farms to help provide over 34 million inmate meals annually.

Improvements to prison farming and food processing has cut the average cost of an inmate meal to $1.59 per day, down from $2.06 per day ten years ago.

Most of the vegetables, meats, eggs, and milk consumed by Georgia inmates are produced and processed on Georgia's prison farms.

Inmate Construction

Inmate construction crews serve the construction needs of Corrections, other state agencies and communities. Inmates renovate schools and city halls, construct state park cottages, and repair bridges.

Fire Services

Minimum security inmates work in the prison fire stations responding to prison and rural fire emergencies.

Community Work Details

Low-security inmates build, refurbish and maintain prison and civic buildings, perform road work, clean public buildings and schools, and work at recycling centers and landfills.

Correctional Industries

An entirely self-supporting component of the agency, Georgia Correctional Industries (GCI) manufactures products for sale to tax-supported entities and others.

In FY00, GCI's 20 manufacturing operations located at 15 prisons generated $24.5 million in sales. On any given day, over 1,800 inmates are assigned to jobs in GCI operations which include metal fabrication, optics, printing, license plates, footwear, woodworking, screen printing, upholstery, garment and chemical production.

GCI inmates learn valuable trade skills for use upon release. GCI manufactures quality products, as evidenced by sales to tax-supported entities as far away as Alaska.

“The measure of GCI’s success lies not only in its sales, but also in the trade skills taught to inmates who manufacture a quality product.”

Jim Wetherington
GDC Commissioner

GCI Plant Locations

Victim Advocacy

Victims and their families can locate inmates and receive notification of release, escape, or death of their offender. By the end of FY00, Corrections had registered over 3,000 victims or family members who requested such notification.

The Office of Victims Services provides assistance to victims or survivors of crime whose attacker is incarcerated in the Georgia prison system.

Working through local courts and their victim/witness programs, Victim Services seeks to provide responsive care and utmost respect for victims of crime.

www.dcor.state.ga.us

VINE Registration Increasing

Georgia's Victim Information and Notification Everyday Program provides registered victims with access to automated data concerning the status of their offender. During Fiscal Year 2000, the Victim Services office assisted thousands more victims of crime with access to the VINE program.

“Victim Rights are a Corrections Priority”

Death Penalty in Georgia

A new Georgia law, passed this fiscal year, mandates death by lethal injection for those sentenced to die for a capital offense.

A law, passed in FY00, changed the legal method of execution in Georgia from electrocution to lethal injection, effective for crimes committed on or after May 1, 2000. Anyone who commits a capital crime after this date, and receives a death sentence, will be executed by lethal injection.

In Georgia, 23 men have been executed since the U.S. Supreme Court upheld Georgia's death penalty in 1976.

Cobb County has the highest number of inmates on death row, followed by Muscogee and Douglas counties.

Georgia had 124 inmates on death row by the end of FY00. Whites comprise 52 percent of the condemned inmates and blacks make up the remaining 48 percent.

State Superior Courts sentenced nine men to death during FY00. No executions occurred during the fiscal year.

All male death row inmates are incarcerated at the Georgia Diagnostic and Classification Prison in Jackson. One female is on death row at Metro State Prison in Atlanta.

Diversified Bed Space

Georgia is continuing to construct sufficient space for hard criminals while also seeking alternative bed space for lesser offenders.

In FY00, Georgia leaders added funds for more than 3,800 hard prison beds. State leaders also supported an aggressive move to add almost 3,600 alternative beds in the form of detention centers, diversion centers, transitional centers, and parole revocation centers. It is the largest addition of such bed space in over 20 years.

“Judges also need the option of alternative beds for lesser offenders. Our job in Corrections is to ensure a diversity of beds that maximize the taxpayer investment while keeping our communities safe.”

Jim Wetherington
GDC Commissioner

Probation: A National View

Georgia has the eighth largest probation population in the nation.

Nationally, there are nearly 3.8 million adults on probation. At the end of FY00, the Georgia Department of Corrections supervised 139,151 probationers, including those housed in probation diversion and detention centers. Compared to other states, Georgia has the eighth largest probation population, yet ranks ninth in the nation in felony probation supervision rate per 100,000 adults.

In Georgia, the number of felons on probation has been on the increase over the past five years. Georgia's probation population is largely made up of felons (82%) compared with the national average (51%).

Probation Supervision

Five years ago, Georgia developed the Risk-Based Supervision Model where all probationers are placed in one of three programs (IPS, SPS, and Regular Probation), and in one of four different classification levels (Max, High, Standard, and Administrative).

Intensive Probation Supervision (IPS)

Offenders who are court-ordered to IPS have significant substance abuse and/or violence problems. This 5 percent of the probation population requires very close supervision by specially trained teams of officers.

Specialized Probation Supervision (SPS)

This program is for sex offenders and for offenders who victimize children. This 5 percent of the probation population also requires close supervision by officers.

Regular Probation

The remaining 90 percent of probationers is mostly felony probationers who are evaluated to be low risk to the public. Probation officers' caseloads for regular probation average 270 per officer.

Probation Caseloads by Supervision Level

Probationers are Managed According to their Risk and Needs

Max: Violent offenders, sexual offenders, predators against children, and other extremely risky offenders.

High: Career criminals, violent offenders, predators, and others with significant risk to the community.

Standard: Mostly nonviolent offenders and those who still owe court-ordered monies. This category may include violent offenders who have shown adherence to the conditions of probation.

Administrative: Offenders who have met all financial obligations and those who have been moved to administrative (non-reporting) status in accordance with state law.

Collections

Probation officers also collect fines, monetary restitution for the crime victims, and fees which are forwarded to the state treasury. Probation collections of court-ordered fees and fines continue to rise.

In addition to supervising and monitoring probationers in the community, in FY00 the Probation Division collected $58 million from probationers in fines, costs, fees, restitution, and Georgia Crime Victim Emergency Fund fees. When the value of probationer community service is included, it's estimated that the Georgia Department of Corrections' Probation Division provided almost $2 million more than the $66 million it is budgeted for its annual operation.

Community Service

Probationers are ordered to perform community service as a condition of probation, or in lieu of fines, jail, or prison. This work repays the community, builds partnerships, and reinforces the work ethic.

In addition to program participation or fees and fines, probationers may be ordered to perform unpaid work for the good of the community.

Community service work often takes the form of unskilled labor such as collecting litter on roadsides, mowing grass, and working in recycling centers. Yet, if a probationer has a special trade, such as a computer or technological ability, he or she may be required to perform a higher skilled community service job.

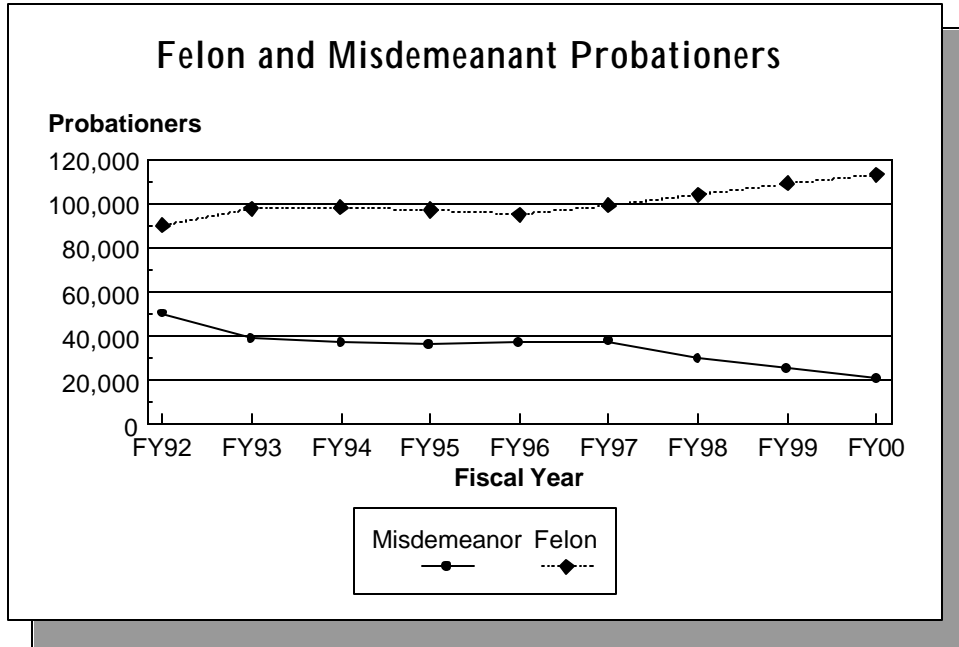

This year, the value of community service fell somewhat because the number of persons sentenced by the courts to perform community service was less in FY00 than in FY99.

Felons and Misdemeanants

In accordance with a law passed in FY00 by the Georgia General Assembly, state supervision of misdemeanants will end on January 1, 2001. Local jurisdictions will contract with private or county agencies for misdemeanor supervision.

The number of felons on probation has been increasing since 1996. The new law passed during the 2000 General Assembly will lower probation caseloads somewhat, but approximately 300 new felons are being added to probation caseloads each month.

The number of serious felony offenders on probation has shown a substantial increase over the last decade.

Crime Type	FY90	FY00
Violent/Personal	11,610	19,111
Property	41,972	47,797
Nonviolent/Personal	0	706

Other	0	9,924

Probation Programs

To ensure public safety and change in the offender, the Probation Division is putting a major emphasis on substance abuse treatment and probationer employment.

Probation offers the offender the opportunity for change outside of a prison environment. Some, however, may relapse into drug use or may otherwise need additional assistance to prevent re-offending. Here are a few examples of probation programs at work:

The Griffin Recovery Intervention Probation Program (GRIPP) provides services to substance abusing probationers including drug and alcohol therapy, classes on life skills, personal counseling and case management.

A joint project of Probation and the State Board of Pardons and Parole, the Atlanta Day Reporting Center is a facility for those probationers and parolees who fail to adhere to the conditions of their sentences.

Opening in 2001, the center's primary emphasis will be on substance abuse and cognitive skills development.

The Bainbridge Substance Abuse Residential Center, also to open in 2001, is a six-month residential substance abuse program for probationers who are unable to manage substance abuse issues through community counseling, and who are on the verge of revocation to prison.

To assist in helping probationers with employability, The Offender Probationer Parolee State Employment Training Program (TOPPSTEP) is a collaborative effort with Corrections, the Board of Pardons and Paroles and the Department of Labor to assist offenders in joining the workforce.

“GRIPP is a tough, no-nonsense program which gives probationers the opportunity to improve their lives through drug treatment, life skills, and employment programs. GRIPP benefits not only the probationer, but more importantly, helps keep our community safe.”

William Larkey
Chief Probation Officer, Griffin Judicial Circuit

Probation Vigilance

A rise in the number of violent and sex offenders on state probation has prompted Georgia to take critical steps toward increased supervision and vigilance.

In FY00, there were 4,700 sex offenders on probation in Georgia. Specialized teams of probation officers monitor sex offenders with around-the-clock supervision at their homes, on the job, and as they move about the community.

Officers received special training to recognize errant sex offender behavior or to counter their manipulative tactics. Specialized officers also learn high-tech methods to track and prohibit sex offender use of Internet sites and chat rooms.

Above all else, probation officers who supervise sex offenders make the public's safety the priority.

Probation officers also work to ensure certain sex offenders are electronically listed with the Georgia Crime Information Center's Sex Offender Register.

Also, specially-trained officers collect samples for DNA analysis from offenders who have been convicted of certain sexual offenses. To date, almost 2,000 DNA samples have been collected and sent to be catalogued at the Georgia Bureau of Investigation crime lab.
